How I like to be supported

Through sign and visual prompts.

I am learning to listen so use short, clear sentences.

I need time to process and think.

I need real objects of reference to aid my understanding.

I need adults to lower themselves to my level and gain my attention before they sign to me.

Adults working with me need to stand still and make sure they have my attention before they speak to me.

The things people love and admire about me

Everyone loves my confidence, nothing stops me – I will have a go at everything!

I am the most determined child ever – if I want something I am going to try so hard to get it.

My sense of humour is brilliant I laugh my way through every day.

My developing relationships with my peers, my empathy for my friends is amazing to watch, if someone is sad I am there straight away to offer them comfort.

How my communication is developing every single day. Hearing really is no barrier for me.

What makes me happy

Being at nursery, I love to be around people, children and adults – I really am the most sociable little girl.

I love to play hide and seek, especially outside. Outside is one of my favourite places to be.

I am so interested in babies, I love to pretend to look after the babies in the home corner but I really love real life babies, whenever babies come into nursery I am there being so kind and gentle.

I love dancing and music, I really do like to sing and dance with my friends, at the minute 'Frozen' music is my favourite.

How I like to be supported

I need the adults to support me using sign alongside simple direct language.

I am learning to listen so use short, clear sentences.

I need time to process and think.

When I am finding it difficult to understand, visuals really help me. I need adults to lower themselves to my level and gain my attention before they sign/talk to me.

Adults working with me need to stand still and make sure they have my attention before they speak to me.

The things people love and admire about me

I am very curious and I like to explore my surroundings. I will study something that has grabbed my attention for a very long time.

I have the biggest brown eyes you have ever seen and I give the most amazing cuddles!

I am really good at communicating what I want without using any words.

What makes me happy

Cuddles with a familiar person. I like to cuddle right in as close as I can get.

I love busy traffic, watching traffic moving from a distance is one of my favourite things to do. I also like to play with toy cars.

I like to keep my coat and hat on. I will take it off if someone helps me but if I am feeling anxious I will let you know that I want to keep it on.

At home I like to watch Peppa Pig and Mickey Mouse.

How I like to be supported

I am learning how to use objects of reference. I need adults to use these alongside clear language. This will help me understand. I find big groups of people really hard to manage, this means I struggle with snack time. I need adults to encourage me to join snacks at quiet times but if I am finding it hard I like to just access a snack and then take it away with me. At times I can be highly distressed. Having a cuddle and going for a little walk can really help to calm me down.

The things people love and admire about me

That I am SO curious. I am always looking and watching what is going on around me.

With support of a familiar person I am really beginning to push myself out of my comfort zone.

I have been incredible at learning how to use PECS. I completely understand that I can use my folder to communicate with the people around and get them to give me the things that I really want.

And finally, I give the best and longest cuddles ever.

What makes me happy

I love emergency vehicles, all types, these really help to distract or calm me. (There is a big bag hanging in my family area)

The outdoors, I like to wander around outside taking in all that is around me

Signs and symbols, such as traffic lights, stop signs, etc..

Other children, I am really beginning to watch the other children and lots of the time they make me really really laugh.

How I like to be supported

I am just starting to use PECS. My folder is in my family area, I will give you a picture in exchange for something I really want. My understanding is really starting to grow, if you show me a visual cue alongside a single word instruction I can really understand what you are asking me.

I am just beginning to explore interactions with the people around me, if you model this it really helps me to manage.

What is important to me.

I really enjoy spending time with my friends. I love watching what they are doing but especially love playing with them.

My Mummy and Daddy are very special and I get excited and smile at the mention of them.

I love messy play but watch out because I like to explore with my mouth and might have a taste. I especially like to explore messy play using my legs and feet. With the help of adults, I love to visit all of the areas on the nursery floor. In some areas I need them to help me reach the objects.

I really like my friends and my friends really like me, I will use a big mac button to ask my friends for "more" especially when they are blowing bubbles.

I like to join in at 'Good Morning Time' and sit in my play pack on the floor with my friends. I get so excited and wriggle so much that sometimes I slip out of position! I am beginning to sign along with some of the songs I will tap my knees at the appropriate time in the "Thank You" song.

My left hand is a bit stronger than my right hand but I'm working very hard to use my right hand. If you put something on my right-hand side please give me time to reach out for it.

I like to sweep objects off my tray. I use this skill to help at tidy up time.

I like to explore books and stories. I am beginning to help to turn the page. I like to reach out and explore touch and feel books. My favourites are "That's Not My" books.

I like singing a lot, one of my favourites is "Wind the Bobbin Up." I will try to clap my hands together in this song.

I will sign 'more' by bringing my hands together, to let you know I want more at snack time. I can use two signs together to sign "more snack."

I wear a nappy and need full support in the bathroom for my care needs.

I am not very keen on getting dressed and undressed but if you sing me a song this helps.

I am trying very hard to use a spoon to eat my yoghurt or custard at snack time but please give me a little hand over hand help. I can sometimes get quite tired doing this.

I really like my food, my favourites are custard, crisps, and hummus! Please give me plenty of time to eat and make sure I have had a big swallow.

I will shake my head very quickly from side to side if I have finished or don't like something.

Outside I love to reach out to feel the flowers and leaves.

I love to get messy outside I love to feel the mud on my hands and feet.

I also really enjoy a game of catch and can push the ball back to you. If the ball lands on my foot plate I will try so hard to give it a kick.

What makes me special.

I am full of energy and have the most amazing giggle!

I love to play with my friends and like them to get close to me.

I will always give anything a try.

I like to be as independent as possible and I am very determined.

I am a pleasure to be around and I make everyone I meet smile!

The ways people help and support me.

- Use my objects of reference and symbols to let me know where I am going or what we are doing next.
- Let me make choices through eye pointing and gestures from a choice of 2.
- Use some simple signs and give me the time to sign back to you.
- Spending time in different positions is good for me. I like to sit in my play pack for good morning time. My chair for snack- please make sure my hips are straight and my tray is on to help keep my head up. I sit on my bench for some large group activities.
- I like to use the Big Mac with messages on. I think this is funny when I request "more" bubbles.
- I have some foot splints that I am starting to wear at nursery for a short time.
- Please keep a little eye on me as I sometimes have absences and I can also have seizures. I have some emergency medication. You can talk to my Mummy and Daddy about this.
- Be a good communication partner, please give me time to process what you have said and lots of time to respond
- Please help me to meet my self-care needs and be ready to sing to me!
- Please help me at snack and mealtimes. I am trying to learn to do things for myself but this can take a bit of time!
- There are lots of things I'd like to have a go at but you may need to plan for how I can access them. I learn a lot from the simple commentaries you offer me whilst you play with me.
